Plan For Special Education

Eugene W. Peyton (left), county Director of Instruction, talks with Miss Esther Shevick and Miss Helen Hill, supervisors of special education with the Va. State Dept. of Education. They visited here last Wednesday (March 17) to talk about the possibility of special education classes for Appomatox County. Appomatox County school administrators and the school board feel that every child in the community has a right to an education as befits his abilities and potential. Plans are in the making to provide educational opportunities for the exceptional child with specially trained teachers and materials.

Plans Made For Tournament

As previously announced by your Golf Committee, plans are progressing for a "Member-Guest Tournament" tentatively scheduled for the week end of June 5th and 6th. All members of Falling River Country Club desiring to participate, are urged to register their team for this "Best Ball Event" as soon as possible. Each team must consist of a member and an outside guest and the entrance fees shall be approx. $15. ($10 for guest and $5 for the member) which doesn't include cart rental or caddies if desired.

Registration for the Club's Golf League is also underway and all members interested in participating must have registered no later than April 11. This deadline is necessary in order that League Play can begin the last week in April. If you haven't registered for these events, don't put it off with the possibility of forgeting or failing to meet the deadline.

Prominent Developer Speaks Here

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT SEEKS MEMBERSHIPS

"It's Up To Us" may well have been the title of Thursday evening's meeting of the Appomattox Industrial Development Corporation at the Town Council meeting room in Town of Appomattox building. Speaker was E. R. "Red" English, of Altavista, prominent businessmen responsible for a great deal of Altavista's growing industrial importance, and this year, the president of the Va. State Chamber of Commerce.

"Industry is finally learning they don't have to go to the 'big city'", said "Red" English, He said that industry "can't get better labor than the people who love their homes, the ones who own some land", or in other words, the residents and workers available in rural communities such as Appomattox.

He listed "industrial sites" as number one item to have ready for potential industrial developers. Eleven such sites are already mapped with pertinent details in the recently published Virginia Electric & Power Co. "Economic Study of Appomattox County."

English stressed the need for "personal contact" by those seeking out industrial prospects for Appomattox County. He suggested that many Lynchburger's "plus values" of an airport, hospitals, cultural attractions and colleges be included in any presentation to a prospect.

He added that local people's attitudes and actions toward visitors often does influence an industry's choice of a location.

Jaycees Seek Night Meetings By Board Of Supervisors

BY Robert Pankey, Secretary
Appomattox County Jaycees

The Appomattox Jaycees have been very busy for the past few weeks visiting the citizens of the county and giving them an opportunity to express their wishes as to whether they desire to have their governing body, the County Board of Supervisors meet at night or continue having day meetings. The Board now meets the second Friday of each month at nine o'clock in the morning.

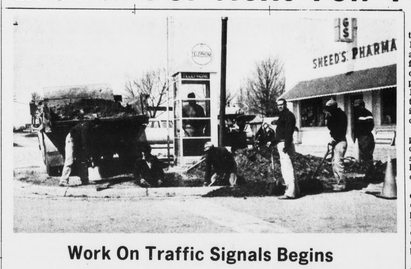
The enthusiam the families of Appomattox County have shown thus far has been very much in favor of night meetings. The degree of interest has been overwhelming, as citizens of all ages speak of such items as methods of taxing, county ordinances, school improvements and many other areas of concern.

In the weeks ahead as in the past, many of the Jaycees will continue their canvass to get the opinion of as many citizens as possible concerning day or night meetings of the County Board of Supervisors.

The Jaycees are a dedicated group gifted with youth that has energy to burn and they believe that "Service to Humanity is the best Work of Life."

Canvassing the Town of Appomattox takes some planning and Appomattox Jaycees (above) made last minute assignments before traveling door - to - door Monday evening. They're seeking voters' support to petition the Appomattox County supervisors to hold night meetings. (From left): Ken Copi, Richard Simpson, Robert Pankey, Curtis Wooten and Robert Stewart.

New Publication Projects County Growth For Next Ten Years



The population of Appomattox County is projected to reach 10,500 by 1980. The average annual growth rate projected for the 1970's is 0.7 percent compared to an increase of 0.4 percent annually during the 1950's and 0.6 percent during the 1960's. (Present population is 9,784 according to the 1970 census.)

Manufacturing, which surpassed agriculture as the county's leading basic employer since 1960, will increase in relative importance among the county's industries by 1980.

More than one-fourth of the county's resident workers are employed outside the county, primarily in the Lynchburg Metropolitan Area which includes Lynchburg City and the counties of Amherst and Campbell.

Most of the projected growth is expected to occur in the Southside Magisterial District due to improvements of Rt. 460 and the continued role of the area as a labor supplier to the Lynchburg Metropolitan Area.

These projections and insights are contained in an economic study just released by the Division of State Planning and Community Affairs. The study is one of a series being developed for every economic area of Virginia. Besides forecasting the economic outlook to 1980, the report also contains historical data from 1950 to 1970. The county's employment is broken into its basic and supporting sectors. The basic or export sector is believed to be the key to future development and growth, since it represents jobs in industries which serve areas or persons outside of Appomattox County and results in additional inflows of income to the county. The supporting or local sector is dependent on developments in the basic sector, since it represents jobs in industries serving only the local county area.

The basic employment sector of Appomattox County is composed of three industries -- manufacturing, agriculture, and the state and federal government sector. All but the agricultural sector are expected to experience growth during the 1970's, with manufacturing showing the most promise for gain.

The Appomattox County study and those completed for other areas of Virginia are available without charge from the Division of State Planning and Community Affairs.

Work On Traffic Signals Begins

On Tuesday workmen for the Va. Dept. of Highways began excavation work for support poles for traffic signals at the intersection of Court Street and Rt. 460 at the western end of the town of Appomattox and also at the intersection of Church Street and Rt. 460 in the eastern section of town. Town officials and others were notified in December that the lights had been approved. J. B. Phillips, District Engineer, announced then that it would be late spring or early summer before signals can be installed for operation. The Jaycees of Appomattox were among those groups and individuals who petitioned for the lights.

School Board Sets Calendar

9th Grade At Intermediate School

In consideration of Appomattox county farmers' harvest just before school resumes in the fall, the Appomattox County School Board gave Supt. Earl Smith's proposed calendar for '71-'72 much consideration and suggested during the March board meeting that the calendar be revised to open school on Tuesday, Sept. 7.

Last year school opening was also delayed by one week to permit boys and girls to help with tobacco and other crop harvests.

Supt. Smith told the board that both the Intermediate School and the High School will be "overcrowded" and "over capacity" next year. The Intermediate School will have to accommodate the 9th grade he said, as well as the 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th graders.

April 3 Deadline For Registration

Saturday, April 3, is the deadline for all residents of the Town of Appomattox, (not registered at the present time) to register in order to be able to vote in Town election for mayor and six councilmen, an election set for Tuesday, May 4.

She replaces Mrs. Emma Lemon, who is now serving as general registrar for the county.
